

healthcare design

All Access

To keep the industry up to speed on the latest design solutions being introduced on healthcare projects, HCDmagazine.com delivers trend stories covering the hottest topics across architecture, interior design, construction, and operations. Complementing that coverage are in-depth project profiles that dig into the newest hospitals and healthcare facilities across the country, with an eye on the needs and goals of providers that guided their design. Here are five of this year's most popular stories from HCDmagazine.com.

COVID-19 Coverage and Resources

As the COVID-19 outbreak unfolds across the U.S. and world, Healthcare Design will continue to monitor the situation with an eye on design and the built environment and deliver coverage that helps you navigate the challenges to come.

READ MORE

Vision Realized At NewYork-Presbyterian David H. Koch Center

The new 734,000-square-foot center answers goals to transform ambulatory care and challenge conventional design approaches to large, urban facilities.

READ MORE

Mix + Match In Workplace Design

Designers are helping healthcare organizations rethink workplace settings by offering space options that support a range of staff types and work processes.

READ MORE

Golden Opportunity At California Pacific Medical Center Van Ness

Sutter Health turned an entire city block in San Francisco into its new 1 million-square-foot California Pacific Medical Center Van Ness campus hospital.

READ MORE

Common Language: Designing For Flexibility

A new study looks to define what flexibility means to various healthcare stakeholders and establish a consistent framework to help achieve it.

READ MORE
